In this session, the panel will provide their unique insight and discussion on the new Disclosure Pilot Scheme, which is set to transform and modernise the approach currently taken to disclosure under CPR Part 31 in the Business & Property Courts. The changes are the result of a two-year review undertaken by the Rolls Building Disclosure Working Group in consultation with the profession. The panel, which includes the chair of the Working Group, three members of the drafting committee and Natalie Osafo (President of the Junior LSLA), will explain the thinking behind the new rules and what they will mean in practice for clients and their advisers.

Benjamin Williams QC, Stephen Innes and Ben Smiley – 4 New Square

The talk will review the changing landscape of litigation funding and will address the questions which commercial litigators need to consider: Are we any closer to knowing whether DBAs will work? Are litigation funders at greater risk of indemnity costs? When can security for costs be obtained from litigation funders and will they still have the protection of the Arkin cap? Does the corporate veil provide any protection against non-party costs-orders?
